The Instrument of the Superhuman Communication Is Not Well Posted on American Politics - Thinks This Country Is Ruled by an Emperor.

Paris, April 6.-Before Mile. Conesdon closed her door to the public to-day your correspondent called on her in behalf of the Journal.

I found a typical Parisian courtyard off the street appropriately called Rue de Paradis, and was met-not by St. Peter, but a lovely girl, the sister of the inspired miss, who ushered me into the kitchen, where hung a formidable battery of copper and enamelled pots and pans, suggesting that the fin de slecle prophetess lived neither on manna nor on nectar.

Though nominally there was nothing to pay, considerable negotiation was required, as the prophetess was very tired, but finally she yielded to my substantial arguwas through the Journal.

I was led into a small back parlor, cheap ly furnished with well-worn appointments and found myself bowing to a handsome brunette of a rich Southern type, with splendid hair and great, lustrous eyes; in short, a girl who might well be called angelic.

This ademoiselle Conesdon and the arch angel Gabriel, suddenly rolled into one divinely beautiful person, began telling me how her inst cation came about; how some months ago she had been musing at home and how one day in a dream suddenly violent sensation, almost terrible, yet half delightful, overcame her; how a strange force had descended and entered her body, announcing itself to be the archangel. Then at once she began to speak words, the source of which she forgot the mo ment the crisis was over.

"I never remember a syllable," said she, "of what I say when I am in what you may call, a trance if you like, but I know that all I say is inspired by the Angel Gabriel, who has chosen to make me his Interpreter."

Mile. Conesdou had already prophesied dire troubles for Europe. If she is to be believed, there is anything but a quiet time in store for America. There is to be a war between the United States and Spain, which will be a succession of big naval battles, the result of which will leave the Spaniard a sadder, if not a wiser, man,
